QASOURCE
Confidence in What You Ship

QUALITY ENGINEERING AND AI ASSURANCE

There Is No Longer a Gap Between Writing Software and Shipping It.

QASource gives engineering leaders confidence in what they ship—whether the software was written by people, generated by AI, or the AI itself is the product.

Two-year releases became weekly, then daily, then hourly, and now change reaches customers as soon as it is finished—with much of it written by AI, and more of it deciding things on its own. QASource gives organizations confidence in the software and AI systems they put into the world and has rebuilt how it does that every time the ground moved.

TIME BETWEEN RELEASES, 2002 TO TODAY

The vertical axis is compressed so that two years and one hour fit on the same chart. It shows how the interval between enterprise software releases has compressed across the industry over two decades. The final step is dashed because there is no longer an interval to measure: Change ships when it is done.
